Consultancy

Accenture and the other Big Four firms primarily act as integrators and consultants rather than building their own software products, focusing on connecting businesses with technology platforms like Microsoft, Salesforce, and AWS.